

Diagnostic Imaging

Training

Training

The training program is offered as a value added program to customers aimed at transferring the knowledge and technology in the highest professional manner.

Training

Due to the importance of diagnostic imaging services in healthcare, we provide detailed product knowledge and training to our customers.

Training programs are offered either in North America or locally at the project site.

The training is available not only to the service technicians, who will assist with the preventive maintenance and service locally, but the technologists who will be operating the equipment.

The training includes classroom as well as applied sessions.
